

WOMEN'S EMPOWERMENT

Women should be the key players, co-creating along with men the new world that humanity needs.

I completely agree with that sentence. I think that women and men must collaborate to create a new and better world, as a feminist I think that not only women have to be the key players, they also have to face the main problems which are the stereotypes created by men and the women that get brainwashed with those things. I'm sure that if men (and a lot of women too) wanted to eliminate many ways of thinking, you could reach your goal earlier. The fact that lots of people think that to be a feminist is to put women above men, that women are seen as objects to just leave at home, or misogyny in general, really breaks my heart and makes me reflect about how humanity is wrong to get to this point. I really hope everyday that over time changes will come, despite there have been steps forward in history, such as the phenomenon of suffragettes back in the XX century. But you all know that to be able to complete this task everyone should give their small part, but as long as this society will be so divided it will be really difficult. But I know that one day we will succeed.

GREAT WOMENS:

I consider Angela Davis one of the greatest women alive that made a part of the black history in particular, and not only. Even though she had a rough life, she has been fighting since she was 14 for her rights as a woman and as a black person. She received many prizes and many songs and films were dedicated to her. One of the most famous songs is Angela by John Lennon. I have chosen her because I admire her courage. She is an inspirational woman, together with many other people she has managed to leave her mark and put a great light towards the road of equality.

Another great woman is Harriet Tubman. Harriet Tubman born slave grew up to be a huge aid of the under railroad by freeing hundreds of other slaves all over the south. When Harriet first escaped to the north she immediately looked for help to go back down south to rescue more people like herself. Harriet Tubman made 19 trips rescuing 300 people and was the first woman to lead an assault in combat and freed 750 slaves during the civil war. Freeing slaves got her a lot of powerful enemies that ended up putting a twelve thousand dollar bounty on her. Harriet Tubman had broken freeing slaves down to a science by doing things at certain times like escaping on Saturdays because Sundays are rest days so they wouldn't notice anyone gone and she would make trips in the winter so the days would have more night time to move in. I chose Harriet Tubman because she listened and followed her heart her whole life and made the world a lot better place by doing it.

Kamala Harris is a US politician, Vice President of the United States of America since January 20, 2021. I admire this woman because she managed to get such an important job, fighting for her rights. In 2010 she was elected Attorney General of California and re-elected again in 2014. Kamala was the first woman to hold this position, as well as the first Asian-American figure. She supports the rights of the LGBT community, certainly that Black Lives Matter community. She is among the 3 most important women in the world and for this reason I believe that she is a springboard for the future, which can only improve.

Greta Thunberg was worried about the whole world, and starting with personal protests in her school, she went to the United Nations, to raise awareness around all the world, young and old people.

Donatella Versace, passionate about the art of fashion since she was a child, followed the steps of her brother who was already established in the world of fashion. Succeeding, to deviate from the nickname "she is the sister of" she created her brand building in this way the history of over half a century of fashion.
